DOUGHBOYS RAID GARY "RED" QUARTERS

FORTY SUSPECTED MEETING PLACES RAIDED AND DANGEROUS CHARACTERS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

AUTHORITIES HAD "SECRET LIST" OF 700 AGITATORS AND UNDESIRABLES FOR WHOM THEY SEARCH

WITHHOLD NAMES OF THOSE TAKEN

GARY, IND., Oct. 15—The mailed fist fell today with sledge hammer force on Gary Reds and bomb plotters. Forty homes suspected as gathering places for the Reds were raided between midnight and dawn by United States soldiers. Eighteen men were taken into custody and held with four others taken in previous raids. An army truck was called into service to carry away printed propaganda.

These raids are merely the start of what may be expected according to Intelligence headquarters. A secret list containing 700 names of strike agitators fell into the hands of the Intelligence department shortly after the soldiers took control here. Intelligence officers are determined to take no chances with the suspects and are insisting on the arrest of the 700. The list named a secret council of 22 which directed the work of the larger organizations. Practically all of the members on the council are now under arrest it was reported.

Col. W. S. Langes, in charge of military operations, today changed his policy and requested newspaper men to refrain from naming the places raided and the names of those taken. The Colonel declined to say what results had been obtained. From examination of one suspect it is said they obtained information concerning the makers of the Gimbel bomb.

MONESSEN STEEL PLANT CLOSES UP; STRIKE LEADERS ARE ENCOURAGED

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15—Steel strike leaders showed increased enthusiasm today after hearing reports that the plant of the American Sheet & Tin Plate company at Monessen which had been attempting to operate closed down after paying off 1,500 men. Union leaders claimed gains in many other quarters while operators maintained the strike was broken and that conditions were approaching normal in all departments.

DELAYED SHIPMENTS BEING RUSHED TO MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Enormous quantities of perishable food stuff held at railway terminals in Jersey City and Hoboken by the strike of the longshore men was being rushed into New York today following the ending of the strike shortly before dawn. None of the perishable food has been damaged by the delay according to railroad officials and producers. It has been in refrigerator cars throughout the strike.

MISSOURI BANK ROBBED

COURT NOTES

In the case of Harry Daub vs. J. B. Garner and Mike Kovach, an appeal from a judgement in "Squire Dalo's" court, Judge Bell issued an order yesterday, restraining Contable Eli Lich from proceeding on an execution issued by the justice.

An order was made directing Chas. E. Waple to pay to his wife $25 council fee, and $10 per month toward the support of his infant child, dating from October 1st, 1919. The question of alimony for the wife, and final allowance for counsel fees to be determined by the master in due course of divorce proceedings.

In the case of John Lawler vs. the Pennsylvania R. R. Company for damages for personal injury, which was brought by Attorney Louis V. Baruch, of Pittsburgh, on August 22nd last, Judge Bell ordered the statement stricken from the record, on account of irregularities; and at the request of Attorney J. P. O'Laughlin for the railroad company. The action does not deprive plaintiff from filing a new statement.

Rosario Ardore, who was convicted of a statutory charge, was sentenced to the Huntingdon Reformatory for an indeterminate period. The matter of support of his child will be taken up upon his discharge from Huntingdon.

An application for divorce was filed by John C. Arnold, Esq., in the case of Rachel Canfield vs. Harry Canfield. The Canfields were married September 30th, 1913, and the wife alleged she was forced to leave her home May 1st, 1919, by reason of the husband's cruel and barbarous treatment, etc.

Fred Martin of Madara, who was convicted of assault and battery a criminal court, was before Judge Bell this morning for sentence and was given $1,000 as costs of prosecution and ten months in jail. He is privileged to apply for a parole at the end of 30 days upon payment of the costs.

The disposition of the case of Mollie Miller, of DuBois, has been deferred until December term with the idea of securing an amicable adjustment of the existing differences between the Millers.

According to the police, the woman has been noticed loitering near the garage on Seventh street here for some time when, as Destra entered today, it is alleged the woman fired three shots, one of them striking Destra on the head. No cause for the act has been ascertained, the police say.

PREMIER SPORT EVENT AT PARK THIS EVENING

Young McCoy, Middle-weight Contender, Will Meet Brother of Ad Wolgast in Ring

HUNDREDS OF SEATS SOLD

The athletic show at the Driving Park this evening promises to attract the largest crowd of the season to the big Exposition Building. Manager McGowan will present a program the like of which was never attempted before in this section.

The principal attraction will be the ten round boxing contest between Johnny Wolgast, of Cadillac, Michigan, and Young McCoy, the Baltimore colored lad, who is in line for middle-weight championship honors. The men are among the best in the country, at their weight, and it is seldom the boxing fans of a town the size of ours, get the opportunity to see a bout of such class as this is scheduled to be. McCoy has been doing his training at Manager Edwards' Third street gymnasium the past week, and is fit as a fiddle. Wolgast, who was a boxing instructor in the U. S. navy during the war, arrived in town with his manager, A. A. DeLozier, of Altoona, at 11:15 this morning, and looks to be in fine shape.

There will be several preliminaries between local lads, while Cuatara and Sansone will stage the semi-main event. A real big battle royal will also be produced in which seven huskies will furnish furious fun for the spectators. The Pullington jinks will leave the Court House corner every 7 1/2 minutes for the Park. Doors open at 7:30, fun starts at 8:30. "Tank" Edwards has been engaged to referee the main bout so that everything is expected to move smoothly tonight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (United Press.)—Two big championship bouts have practically been arranged for Thanksgiving Day.

Benny Leonard, world's light weight champion will meet Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia light weight in a fifteen round, no-decision bout at New Haven. Pete Herman, bantam champion will meet either Pal Moore or Joe Lynch at New Orleans.

The Leonard-Tendler mill has the promise of being one of the season's best battles. The Quaker light weight, despite the whipping he received from Willie Jackson has everything that brands him as a real candidate for the crown worn by Billy Gibson's champion. Tendler has been helping for a fight for months and so thoroughly convinced the fans of his sincerity that they made a demand for a chance for the Sleepy City boy that Gibson couldn't turn down.

Pete Herman wants to get back into the good graces of the fans who have been panning him of late. He has agreed to fight anyone on Turkey Day that his manager will sign up. He'll take either Pal Moore, of Jimmy White fame or Joe Lynch, the New York flash. Rather than have the two aspiring little fellows run the risk of broken limbs in the rush after the match he suggests that Moore and Lynch get together about October 20th in some ring, and decide who gets to put on the gloves for the crack at the champion-ship.

Fans who saw that go between Lynch and the champion at New Haven were almost one in declaring that the New York boy made the southerner look foolish. Herman retained his championship by running away, they claimed. If Lynch and the little Pete do get together in a bout of reasonable length the following of the Gotham scrapper will lay odds that their idol will bring home top crowd.

THIS IS THE LAST DAY TO JOIN THE "BREAD BASKET CLUB"

Make out your check tonight and mail it to THE PROGRESS. We will see that it reaches headquarters and that your name is published in the final list tomorrow.

BIRTHDAY OF WILLIAM PENN RECALLED

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 15.—Two hundred and seventy five years ago yesterday, in the city of London, occurred the birth of William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania and one of the foremost figures in the early history of America. It was in 1681 that Penn received from Charles II, the grant of the extensive territory called Pennsylvania. This grant invested him with proprietary right and dominion, the King retaining the general sovereignty. Charles II himself was responsible for the name of the territory, Penn wishing to call it "Sylvania," but the King insisted on prefixing "Penn" to the title. This was done in a desire to commemorate the greatness of Penn's father, who was admiral of England and a great general. "Pennsylvania" the territory was called, and Penn immediately created a big boom for land publishing in England and throughout Europe the liberal scheme of government which he had outlined. It was his intention, he said, to try the "holy experiment" of a "free colony for all mankind."

At the very beginning Penn made a treaty with the Indians which, as some one has said, "was never sworn to and never broken." The Indians were always the sincerest friends of Penn's people, and when William Penn died the red men mourned him as they would have deplored the death of one of their most distinguished members of their tribe. The anniversary of Penn's birth has served to revive memories of the project launched some years ago looking to the transfer of the remains of the great founder from the graveyard in Buckinghamshire, England, to Philadelphia. In 1831 the Pennsylvania legislature gave its official endorsement to the plan and requested the cooperation of the President of the United States in securing its fulfillment, but nothing tangible ever came of the project.

BEAR SEASON OPENS

Pennsylvania's bear hunting season will open tomorrow and run until the fifteenth day of December. The game code allows one bear to each individual or three to a camp, and no traps or deadfalls are allowed. Bears have not been reported as very numerous in some of the northern and central counties, where they were a nuisance last year.

GLAND SWELLING IS NOT SERIOUS WILL NOT HINDER HIS RECOVERY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—No serious consequences are expected from the gland swelling which has caused President Wilson much restlessness in the last 36 hours, according to officials at the White House this morning. The ailment, it is believed, will not interfere with his general progress recovery. This belief was born out by the statement issued last night by Dr. Grayson and other physicians stating "the President had a restless night and an uncomfortable day but is better tonight." Dr. A. H. Fowler of Washington was called in in connection with the swelling late yesterday. The President is responding to Fowler's treatment.

This coal and gas range with two ovens

Although less than four feet long it can do every kind of cooking for any ordinary family by gas in warm weather or by coal or wood when the kitchen needs heating.

There is absolutely no danger in this combination, as the gas range section is as entirely separate from the coal section as if placed in another part of the kitchen. By using both the coal and gas sections of the top, also large utensils may be heated at one time.

See the Pastry Baking always in sight in the glass oven. The most delicate cake can be perfectly baked and watched through the glass paneled door.

A Large Roast and other baking can be done at the same time in the coal oven. The advantage is plain—Two Ovens give double capacity and allow the cook to complete the baking in one half the usual time.

Hunting Eye Fears the Law

By R. S. ALEXANDER

"You'd better look out, killing rabbits out of season; the law'll get you," called a farmer to a hunter as Hunting Eye was passing.

The Indian boy was terrified. That very morning he had shot a rabbit. In the great North woods Swift Foot had taught him legends of his people, how spirits protected the animals of the forests and avenged wrongs done them. But Swift Foot had never told him of this strange new Spirit, the Law, who punished the killing of rabbits. He did not know what he might do to gain the Spirit's forgiveness. He was very much afraid and hid in a thicket that the Spirit might not find him.

Presently the hunter came near and spied the Indian boy.

"I'm hiding from the Law. I killed a rabbit this morning and I'm afraid the Spirit will punish me."

The hunter laughed.

"You needn't be afraid," he said. "The law is not a Spirit like those of your people. When people live together as we do they must have rules as to what they may or may not do. Your people have them, only they are not written down. With us they are written and each rule is called a law. All these rules together are called the Law. When we break the Law we disobey one of these rules."

"Who makes these rules?"

"The Legislature makes them. It is made up of men who are elected by the people. The laws they make are printed and everybody is supposed to obey them. That is all the Law is. You needn't be afraid of it, but I'd advise you not to disobey any of its rules."

Hunting Eye continued his journey toward the East. While he still worshiped the Spirits of his people, he no longer feared this new Spirit of the white man, the Law. He had decided to obey it and keep its favor.

Questions.

1. What are the laws made by a city called?
2. What is meant by "the two houses of the Legislature"?
3. Can the Governor or the President make a law?
4. What happens when a man breaks a law?

(Next week Hunting Eye is arrested by the sheriff.)

Autumn Wild Flowers

By ADELIA BELLE BEARD

"Off for an all-day hike?" Then you will have time to go on a real wild flower hunt. Because the flowers are not so plentiful at this season, they are just so much the more to be valued and treasured when found.

The WILD ASTERS are at their best now; white and purple little wheel-like blossoms with many spokes. Some of the plants are bushy and you will find them bordering dry fields, others are wood-lovers and seek the shade. The tall white aster grows in swamps and moist places, and keeps on growing until sometimes it is seven feet high. It has long, tapering leaves and its flower clusters are large and flat.

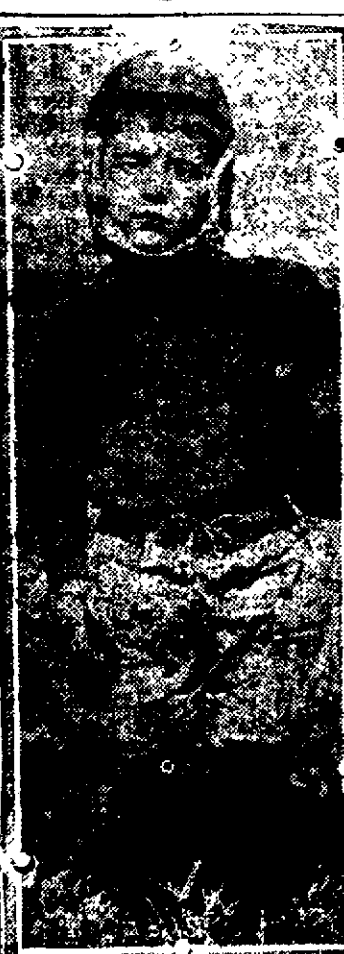

It is good sport to hunt the FRINGED GENTIAN, for one can never tell where to look for it. It is a gipsy flower with no settled abiding place and may turn up almost anywhere that provides sufficient moisture. It doesn't have to grow in water, but is usually somewhere near it. The gentian is a wandering plant because it grows from new seeds, not from the old root, and the seeds are easily washed away. The blossoms stand upright at the top of stems which are generally a little over one foot high. They are deeply blue, closed tube-like at the bottom, but flare out at the top into four petals fringed on the edges.

Goldenrod you will doubt find in quantities, but the beautiful JEWEL-WEED is more rare in most sections. Its blossoms as late as October and its daisy-like, yellow flowers, spotted with black, are really jewel-like, especially when covered with drops of dew or rain. The plant is branching and grows along streams and in marshy places. I have also found it by the dry roadside. Late in the season it bears closed blossoms which mature in the bud. Another name for the jewel-weed is wild lady-slipper.

OBITUARY

HARVEY T. SMITH

On Friday morning Harvey T. Smith, a life long resident of Clearfield, passed away at his residence on McNaull street, after an illness covering a period of over a year, although he had only been confined to his bed for two days prior to his demise. Harvey T. Smith was the youngest son of John J. and Nancy J. Smith, and was one of a family of fifteen children, all of whom are now dead. He was born in Pike township, on April 28th, 1843, hence was aged 76 years, 5 months and 12 days. His education was a crude one and confined to the elementary rules taught in the schools of the early day. He attended school at what was known until a few years ago as the "Oakland school house" not far from the Bloom bridge. He remained with his parents helping them with the farm work until the civil war broke out. During the first four years of the war he tried to enter the military service but was refused, but finally on March 8th 1865, he passed the required physical examination and became a member of the famous Co. B, 149th Penna. volunteer infantry, or "Bucktails" as they were known. He joined the regiment when it was stationed at Elmira, N. Y., guarding Confederate prisoners, and remained with his company until the regiment was mustered out of the service in July, 1865. After his return from the army he followed lumbering until his crippled condition from rheumatism would not permit his following that line of work any longer, and shortly afterward he moved into the borough where he has resided since. On December 5th, he was united in marriage to Miss Annie Gensler, a daughter of George and Nancy J. Gensler. To this union were born seven children: Percy E., Clarence B., Oliver F., Katherine, (who died at the age of thirteen) Eugene F., (who was accidentally killed on the Roaring Run railroad at the age of twenty-one years) Alice L., the wife of Fred McKenzie and Harvey Smith Jr.

Sixteen years Mr. Smith served this borough as street commissioner, and for fifteen years was high constable and a member of the board of health. He also served the county as jury commissioner, and made a most efficient officer in that capacity as well as all other offices that he held. He has been identified with the Republican party ever since he became a voter, and has been all of his life a very active and useful citizen. For many years he has been connected with the Odd Fellow lodge of this place, being one of the oldest Past Grand of that order. He was also connected with the encampment at Clearfield and the Red Men and G. A. R. of this place. His funeral will be held from his late home on Tuesday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock. Bethesda lodge will have entire charge of the services. Interment will be made in the family plot in Oak Hill cemetery.

Another civil war veteran has answered the last bugle call and entered upon that last march from which no traveler ever returns. Mr. Smith was also a devoted member of the Presbyterian church, and very rarely, when he was able to do so, missed a Sunday service. Harvey T. Smith will be missed by his immediate family and relatives as he will be by the people of this community who have known him for years.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and youthful with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked or faded hair is grandma's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mossy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the lady with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

A Gentleman Fairy

By EDNA DEANE LYALL

Where all the children came from Rodney Marsh could not comprehend. It seemed as if magically quick some telepathic signal had been conveyed to every juvenile in the vicinity of the great city. A little group made mud pies. They wore soiled, ragged garments, were barefooted, and with pity and interest the kindly faced young man studied these poor and neglected, but happy children of the city.

Marsh drew out some small change and dropped as many coins among the four urchins who were engrossed in their mock pastry task. There was a scramble, a rapturous yell, a babel of voices from doorways and alleys. Then poured into the center children from far and near. They surrounded Marsh with grimed hands, extended and eloquent pleas for consideration.

"That is all," announced Marsh, as he detected specious repeaters in evidence and started away. Only one of the throng ran after him, breathless and big eyed. He noticed that she was of a different breed to the general mass, being clean, poorly, but neatly dressed, and with a winning personality.

"Oh, mister, please!" uttered the little six-year-old miss. "Are you really throwing away money?"

"Why, yes, my dear, to good little children, and I am sure you must be that."

"Mamma says so, and Auntie Phyllis," came the prompt response. "Oh, how rich you must be! But I know—you're a gentleman fairy! You see, I've been saving up to buy the big doll down at the corner. Come along and I'll show you," and the little one took his hand with a trustfulness that caused him to thrill with pleasure. She halted finally beside a show window full of toys and pointed with enraptured ecstasy at the object of her admiration.

It was marked two dollars. Marsh took out a banknote.

"Oh! does it take all that money?" cried Edith Waldron. "Please, Mr. Fairy, I can do without the doll, and I'd rather you'd buy an invalid chair for poor sick mamma."

"You sweet, self-sacrificing little cherub. You shall have the doll first, and then we will see about the invalid chair," said Marsh, and his companion hugging and chatting to her towards the tenement row.

"There's where we live," little Edith enlightened Marsh, and she pointed to a third story window. There was a box filled with flowering plants. The windows were clean and bright and adorned with snowy white curtains. "My papa is dead, and we are very poor, and Auntie Phyllis is nursing poor mamma, and she can't get about, and if any of your fairies have an invalid chair, won't you please send her one?"

"Indeed, I will!" pledged Marsh, and within the hour an invalid's wheeled chair was on its way to the old tenement. It had been a relief to mingle with the lowly and make at least a few humble ones happy, but now Marsh's own troubles filled his thoughts. He had come to the city to defend a lawsuit which, if it went against him, would mean the loss of nearly all he possessed. He knew that the claim against him was unjust, but it was in the hands of legal vampires.

Marsh located the rooms on the third floor. He knocked at an open door, noting the neatness of the place. A woman, pale and careworn, seated in a new invalid chair, greeted him. "I understand that Miss Worth does copying at home," spoke Marsh, "and I have some work for her if she is not too busy."

"My sister will return in a few minutes. Won't you be seated, please?" said the invalid.

Marsh sat down in a chair near a typewriter. Upon a table lay a number of typed sheets. He could not help but notice them. As Mrs. Waldron wheeled herself into an adjoining room Marsh picked up one and then another of the sheets, deeply absorbed.

"It is fate!" he whispered quite aroused, to himself, for by some strange coincidence Miss Worth had been copying the papers of the opposing counsel in his lawsuit. His face lightened as he became fully aware of the testimony and witnesses to be present, made some hurried notes and now knew what points to guard in the litigation.

Bright voices and footsteps sounded outside and Marsh arose to face a young girl twenty and a child of six, hearing in her loving clasp the famous doll of the corner store.

"Oh, Auntie Phyllis!" cried Edith ecstatically, rushing towards Marsh and throwing her arms about his neck. "It's the gentleman fairy!"

Marsh blundered through his equivocal mission as best he might. He said nothing when Miss Worth discovered his identity and insisted that as she could he should be repaid for the cherished invalid chair. It was destined to become a family possession, however, for the day Marsh won his case he asked gentle, faithful Phyllis Worth to become his wife.

Miss Edith Ericson has returned from visiting relatives and friends in Cleveland, Ohio.

HYMN OF HATE SEEN IN ANTI-FRENCH EDITORIAL

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
BERLIN. (By Mail.)—Something akin to a "hymn of hate" is rising up in Germany against France.

So far it hasn't found emphatic expression in the press. But, every move on the part of the entente which displeases Germany is generally attributed to the influence of Clemenceau and Tardieu. And, there is an undercurrent of talk which suggests that some day—not in this generation probably, but later—there will be new trouble in which Germany and France will again fly at each other's throats.

Theodor Wolff, editor of the Tageblatt, a man of some judgment, and mild language, took occasion in a recent issue of his paper to give France a lecture on neighborliness. While he didn't exactly sing a hymn of hate, he did point out quite significantly that, even though France had been since against, she might stupidly stir up new trouble for herself if she did not take a new tack.

The occasion for most of his remarks was the alleged quotation of the French socialist, Albert Thomas, who recommended the "peaceful penetration of the left Rhine bank," as well as the recent allied demand for alteration of the German constitution as respects Austrian representation in the Reichsrat.

Most of his remarks were directed squarely at France.

"Previously, France and the other entente powers," he wrote, "through all their measures, conditions and decisions have, like the German Independents, strengthened nationalism and the counter revolutionary and militarist reaction in Germany."

The French deputies, he complained, had gone on the theory that the treaty was too mild and that it did not offer sufficient security for France.

"We have always said," Wolff continued, "that a great folk cannot always be laid in chains. Since one cannot exterminate such a people (the Germans) nor drown them in the sea,

"But Clemenceau and Tardieu, as well as most of the deputies, will not go this path. The single idea of these parliamentary critics of the treaty is that the entente has done wrongly in allowing Germany to exist."

Wolff insisted, too, that there was more "Prussianism" and more of a "yoke" about the authorities in Paris than in all Prussia. His article was written on a vacation in the mountains, and from nature he drew a simile which, translated between the lines, meant that France would do well to proceed carefully, lest she stir up a nation and weld it anew against her. What he claimed were French-inspired attempts to separate some of the Rhineland regions from France, he pointed out, were having an adverse effect.

"Here in the mountains," he concluded, "one sees the little rivulets which despite all hindrances force their way through and reach the free valley below, because for powers which constantly renew themselves there is always an exit. That is a spectacle which is not surprising but rather comforting and instructive."

And, from quite another source—the conservative Deutsche Tageszeitung, an organ of the "right" side—comes the thought that Germany some day wants to use her army as "influence on the outer policy" of the nation. While the writer carefully avoided all appearance of trying to suggest doing the peace treaty terms—and in fact wrote to the contrary—his editorial gives the impression that silence as to the army is necessary lest the entente watch too closely what is going on. The writer says that many people want to see the army so built up that virtually all of its personnel can serve later as officers or instructors. But such publication, he says, only hinders the building of the new army because it makes the entente more attentive as to what is going on.

CAN THE YOUNG APPRECIATE AUTUMN?

By L. J. Laporte

The falling and rustling of the leaves reminds us that a few words in regard to autumn would not be amiss right here and now. Listen, kind friends: Can the young love autumn as it is loved by so many of those who, if they are not exactly either old or even middle-aged, are no longer young? Can those who are still young, almost exclusively for the present and future, with no sense of the past, sense the feeling of those who yearly love the golden autumn more, with less yearning for the verdure and freshness of spring, and less vigorous delight in the icy sparkle of the winter? In autumn we feel the God of the yellow hills bending a bit nearer above us. There is a peace stealing over the world, these gentle autumn days; a peace as unvarying and as serene as those straight rising slender columns of blue, that lazily drift from the chimneys of the dozing countryside. At the end of the summer the little treasuries have lost their spring-fed tumult and their passion. They slip away in slender shrinking lines of orange and silver, scarcely enough of movement, or of flood with them to float the brilliant leafy ships that come tumbling down from maple and from beech. Autumn is time of ripeness, yellow fields, dry rustling rows of fodder, floating hawks and crows, almost motionless in the serenity above; it is a time for introduction, of counting up the year's harvest of communing with your soul, of getting acquainted with the good warm earth, slowly sinking into her night of sleep. A golden autumn afternoon and you alone out in the quiet, where even the migratory birds are silent, and the bushy tailed red fellow in the nut trees quite at ease scolding, and stands still and erect, his pouched cheeks stuffed with a load for his pantry—there are associated with such a picture emotions unknown to the mind that does not turn often in wistful yearning to things past and gone.

HOLDING BACK THE NEWS

For almost three weeks the people of the United States have known that the Chief Executive has been incapacitated, temporarily at least. During all of this time his household, his intimates and his closest friends and advisors have seen fit to withhold from the general public the real nature of his illness and these tactics have given rise to rumors of "fifty seven" varieties. Owing to the bitter controversy around the official life of the President and his acts it is only natural that the greatest obstacle is given the most sensational rumors. The absence of reliable detail has only served to breed all kinds of stories, many of which are without foundation and utterly ridiculous. For this state of affairs his friends and official household are themselves to blame. What their motive is in trying to conceal the facts from the public is not apparent. No matter what is his trouble, a plain statement of the facts would have saved Mr. Wilson from the attacks being made upon him. The human body is always open to the attacks of disease in its thousands of forms and while man in many cases is to blame for the disease which attacks him the bare fact remains that it is disease of some form or other that eventually removes a life from its earthly sphere. The idea that mental troubles are a disgrace and that there is difference between mental disease and bodily disease is altogether too prevalent. Both the brain and the body are made up of the same tissue although that of the brain is much more delicate and is just as likely to be overworked as any organ of the body.

It is not for the laymen to go into the intricacies of mental troubles. That belongs to the scientific man. Suffice it to say that Mr. Wilson is ill and that regardless of our views on his official acts we wish him a speedy recovery. Should he recover and live to hear all the base current rumors he can blame his official household for not telling the people the whole truth.

The futility of holding back the news is known to every man engaged in the newspaper business. It simply cannot be done. Dame Rumor has too many friends. People are considered the truth but reckless with rumor.

SECOND CHAPTER OF WINBURNE BRICK COMPANY WRITTEN

The stockholders of the Winburne Fire Brick company went into court Monday with a bill in equity in which they recite the alleged wrongs against them suspected of Thomas H. Wilson the Pittsburgh promoter, responsible for the formation of the corporation. In the court action a preliminary injunction was asked for and granted restraining Wilson from 1st Disposing of any of the personal property or assets of the Winburne Fire Brick company in his possession, custody or control, including money, Liberty Bonds, and all other items of personal property belonging to said corporation.

2nd Issuing, negotiating or filling in for the purpose of issue or negotiation any checks of said corporation in his possession signed in blank by the treasurer.

3d Selling, negotiating, assigning or transferring to any other person or persons any shares of the capital stock either preferred or common, now standing in the name of said defendant, on the books of the Winburne Fire Brick company, or any of the shares of the capital stock, either preferred or common as yet unissued by the said corporation.

The preliminary injunction was granted by Judge Bell yesterday and the papers placed in the hands of Sheriff Gorman this morning for immediate service.

According to the bill in equity filed the Winburne Fire Brick company was organized at a meeting in Pittsburgh December 19, 1918. The capital stock of the corporation was placed at $1,000,000, or 10,000 shares at a par value of $100 each. At this meeting Thomas H. Wilson was elected President; H. Morris, Secretary, and Thomas Allebran, of Pottsville, Pa., Treasurer.

The property of the company consisted of certain leases for the Snyder estate coal and clay lands in Cooper township made in name of Thomas H. Wilson.

At this meeting $100,000 of preferred stock was issued to Thomas H. Wilson on condition that he transfer

The Essex Is With Us

We Will Sell This New Light Weight Quality Car. Our Full Endorsement is Added to All That Everyone Says for it

Come and Ride In It

When the Essex made its first appearance we in common with other dealers were a bit skeptical.

Curiosity led us to take a ride in the Essex. That was enough. The way the Essex rode over rough roads and pavements was amazing to us with our accustomed idea of light car riding qualities.

But when the Essex started to climb hills our admiration was finally and completely won. It was not necessary to show us how quickly the Essex accelerated or how easily it answered every touch of the wheel. It was not necessary for the demonstrator to say a word. The Essex had us at its feet.

The beauty of the Essex design and the trimness of its lines only added to our enthusiasm. In every respect the Essex was the equal of cars many times its cost.

So we decided to get the Essex representation if it were possible. It was not an easy task. The quick popularity of the Essex led other dealers to also want to sell the Essex. The Essex people chose only those dealers who meet the highest standards. We had to show our qualifications. At last we received word that we were to have the Essex for this territory.

An Essex is now at our store. We have a demonstrating car. Come, see, and ride in it. You will be just as enthusiastic about this new type fine car as we were. It combines every advantage of light car economy and flexibility with large car comfort and endurance. Be sure and ride in it.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

Mr. Mike Casey, a resident of Curwensville, died at his home on Tuesday, after an illness extending over a year. He received a injury while working in the hard day mines operated by Mr. Wagner, of far from his home, from which he never regained his health. His age was 44 years. He is survived by a widow and three children.

Mr. A. H. Anderson sold on Tuesday a house and lot, situate on Anson street, South Side, to Walter and wife. Consideration $1,250.

Captain George H. Hallack was a Curwensville visitor yesterday. Seven years ago he was an apprentice in Summit Sole Leather tannery, but tiring of his job he went to his home in Wilcox. Since his residence here he has done considerable traveling, visiting Alaska and all of the northwestern states. Two years and a half ago he enlisted in the army and saw active service in half a dozen or more of the foreign countries in the war zone. He left on the evening train for the east, where he expects to be mustered out of the service within the next few days.

Ex-Sheriff Ira McClosky, of Clearfield, was a town visitor for several hours yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Karl Dotts and bride arrived home on Sunday. Mrs. Dotts will resume her position in the post office until the first of the year, after which the young couple expect to go to housekeeping.

Two blind men, with a street melodeon, entertained the people in front of the Opera House block last evening by singing some fine selections.

Mrs. George Fleming, residing on Bloomington avenue, who has been seriously ill for many weeks, is now able to sit up in a chair a few hours each day, which is very encouraging news for her many friends on this side of the river.

The funeral of the late Harvey T. Smith yesterday afternoon, was attended by over fifty Odd Fellows. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the Odd Fellows used the house service instead of the one used at the graveside. The floral tributes, while not elaborate, were very beautiful and appropriate for the occasion.

Mrs. E. L. Coolbroth, who for the past six weeks has been visiting with relatives and friends at Johnstown and other eastern towns, returned to her home in this place last evening.

Mr. D. R. Fleming, who went to Illinois last week to attend a funeral of a relative, returned home Tuesday evening.

At a regular meeting of Bethesda Lodge No. 21 I. O. O. F., held Saturday evening in their hall the following resolutions were adopted:

"So let him sleep that dreamless sleep. Our sorrows clustering 'round his head; Be comforted, ye loved who weep. He lives with God—he is not dead."

In memory of Brother Harvey T. Smith, who died October 9th, 1919. Once again death has summoned a Brother Odd Fellow, and the golden gateway to the Eternal City has opened to welcome him to his home. He has completed his work in the ministering to the wants of the ar-dicted in shedding light into darkened souls and in bringing joy into the places of misery and as his reward has received the plaudits "well done," from the Supreme Master.

And whereas, the all-wise and merciful Master of the Universe has called our beloved and respected brother home, and he having been a true and faithful member of our beloved Order, therefore be it

Resolved: That Bethesda Lodge No. 21, I. O. O. F., of Curwensville, Pa., in testimony of its loss, be draped in mourning for thirty days, and we tender to the family our sincere condolence in this deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

The leases referred to above to the Winburne Fire Brick company. In addition to this $50,000 worth of common stock was also issued to Wilson to be used as a bonus for the purpose of helping the sale of the preferred stock in the concern. The allegation upon which the whole action is brought is that despite the fact that this stock was issued to Wilson and has since been in his possession he has so far failed to make the agreed upon transfer of the leases in question. In addition thereto he has also sold a great many shares of stock in the company, the exact amount and value of which and return therefor is unknown to the stockholders and not in possession of their duly accredited officers.

The preliminary injunction terminates October 25th, unless extended at that time.

MARRIED THIS MORNING

Ray Hudson Brown, of Curwensville, and Eleanor May Thurston, of Clearfield, surprised their host of friends by slipping quietly over to the West Side Methodist parsonage and having Rev. C. C. Snively say the words which made them man and wife. The ceremony was performed at 7:40 o'clock in the presence of the immediate families of the contracting parties.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George I. Thurston, and a charming and accomplished young woman. The groom has been employed at the local Workman's Store for some time and has made a host of friends during his residence here.

The happy couple left on the 8:20 P. M. R. train for a wedding trip to Philadelphia and other eastern cities.

Voss Electric Washers--Add to Home Comforts, Shortens the Working Hours

A popular model. This short bench platform machine is one of the most popular models that we handle. The platform is made large enough for an extra tub and the extension tray, which slides under the bench when not in use, provides still another. The machine is equipped with an extra clothes tray, castors of double roller type, a motor of ample capacity, together with the famous double controlled Voss wringer mechanism. Metal tubs on his machine are extra. $100.00 Cash, $110.00 Payments

Remember there is an electric washer designed to take advantage of the conditions peculiar to your home. It was generally conceded that one type was as suitable as an other, but this is far from true. To get the utmost in an efficient, economical Electric Washer there are many things you should know before buying. First of all figure out where you will use the machine, and how much space you have. Have you hot and cold water facilities, and are they conveniently located? Have you stationary tubs? Is there a floor drain? All these questions and many others are answered in our new book "Practical Information for the Washing Machine Buyer." Ask us to send you a copy. It is free.

DELIGHTFUL MUSICAL PROGRAM

The Officiaclamoose Trio, composed of three of Clearfield High School's most talented musicians, gave a delightful concert during chapel exercises this morning. An idea of the class of this trio may be gained by a perusal of the program so charmingly rendered.

The first number was the overture "Orpheus," from the opera by Offenbach. The second selection was the "Herd Girl's Dream" by August Labitzky. No. 3 was the fox trot "You Can Have It, I Don't Want It," and the concert concluded with the "Toreador's Song" from the opera "Carmen."

The members of the trio are William Hoover, violin; H. P. Bridge, Jr., saxophone and F. P. Wentzel, piano.

We have a superior idea of what GOOD VALUES MEAN

Thank You

For the great business you are giving us these days—you can be certain there will be no let-down of value giving.

It is summed up in a very few words—"quality for quality our prices are lower than elsewhere"—and when we say "quality" please bear in mind the fact that we always offer the best—no reduction in quality for a reduction in price—and so certain are we that our values are unequalled that we make this challenge—"if at any time you find an article of equal merit offered elsewhere at a lower price than we have the same article in stock—even if the prices have been deliberately lowered below ours—we will sell you the same article at a still lower price—for we positively will not be undersold by anyone—and that is our idea of values—get acquainted with them.

FORTY SUSPECTED MEETING PLACES RAIDED AND DANGEROUS CHARACTERS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

WITHHOLD NAMES OF THOSE TAKEN

GARY, IND., Oct. 15—The mailed fist fell today with sledge hammer force on Gary Reds and bomb plotters. Forty homes suspected as gathering places for the Reds were raided between midnight and dawn by United States soldiers. Eighteen men were taken into custody and held with four others taken in previous raids. An army truck was called into service to carry away printed propaganda.

These raids are merely the start of what may be expected according to Intelligence headquarters. A secret list containing 700 names of strike agitators fell into the hands of the Intelligence department shortly after the soldiers took control here. Intelligence officers are determined to take no chances with the suspects and are insisting on the arrest of the 700. The list named a secret council of 22 which directed the work of the larger organizations. Practically all of the members on the council are now under arrest it was reported.

Col. W. S. Langes, in charge of military operations, today changed his policy and requested newspaper men to refrain from naming the places raided and the names of those taken. The Colonel declined to say what results had been obtained. From examination of one suspect it is said they obtained information concerning the makers of the Gimbel bomb.

The President, it was learned, will insist that the conference accomplish some of the purposes for which it was called.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15—Steel strike leaders showed increased enthusiasm today after hearing reports that the plant of the American Sheet & Tin Plate company at Monessen which had been attempting to operate closed down after paying off 1,500 men. Union leaders claimed gains in many other quarters while operators maintained the strike was broken and that conditions were approaching normal in all departments.

DELAYED SHIPMENTS BEING RUSHED TO MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Enormous quantities of perishable food stuff held at railway terminals in Jersey City and Hoboken by the strike of the longshore men was being rushed into New York today following the ending of the strike shortly before dawn. COURT NOTES

In the case of Harry Daub vs. J. B. Garner and Mike Kovach, an appeal from a judgement in "Squire Dalo's" court, Judge Bell issued an order yesterday, restraining Contable Eli Lich from proceeding on an execution issued by the justice.

An order was made directing Chas. E. Waple to pay to his wife $25 council fee, and $10 per month toward the support of his infant child, dating from October 1st, 1919. The question of alimony for the wife, and final allowance for counsel fees to be determined by the master in due course of divorce proceedings.

In the case of John Lawler vs. the Pennsylvania R. R. Company for damages for personal injury, which was brought by Attorney Louis V. Baruch, of Pittsburgh, on August 22nd last, Judge Bell ordered the statement stricken from the record, on account of irregularities; and at the request of Attorney J. P. O'Laughlin for the railroad company. The action does not deprive plaintiff from filing a new statement.

Rosario Ardore, who was convicted of a statutory charge, was sentenced to the Huntingdon Reformatory for an indeterminate period. The matter of support of his child will be taken up upon his discharge from Huntingdon.

An application for divorce was filed by John C. Arnold, Esq., in the case of Rachel Canfield vs. Harry Canfield. The Canfields were married September 30th, 1913, and the wife alleged she was forced to leave her home May 1st, 1919, by reason of the husband's cruel and barbarous treatment, etc.

Fred Martin of Madara, who was convicted of assault and battery a criminal court, was before Judge Bell this morning for sentence and was given $1,000 as costs of prosecution and ten months in jail. He is privileged to apply for a parole at the end of 30 days upon payment of the costs.

The disposition of the case of Mollie Miller, of DuBois, has been deferred until December term with the idea of securing an amicable adjustment of the existing differences between the Millers.

PREMIER SPORT EVENT AT PARK THIS EVENING

HUNDREDS OF SEATS SOLD

The athletic show at the Driving Park this evening promises to attract the largest crowd of the season to the big Exposition Building. Manager McGowan will present a program the like of which was never attempted before in this section.

The principal attraction will be the ten round boxing contest between Johnny Wolgast, of Cadillac, Michigan, and Young McCoy, the Baltimore colored lad, who is in line for middle-weight championship honors. The men are among the best in the country, at their weight, and it is seldom the boxing fans of a town the size of ours, get the opportunity to see a bout of such class as this is scheduled to be. McCoy has been doing his training at Manager Edwards' Third street gymnasium the past week, and is fit as a fiddle. Wolgast, who was a boxing instructor in the U. S. navy during the war, arrived in town with his manager, A. A. DeLozier, of Altoona, at 11:15 this morning, and looks to be in fine shape.

There will be several preliminaries between local lads, while Cuatara and Sansone will stage the semi-main event. A real big battle royal will also be produced in which seven huskies will furnish furious fun for the spectators. The Pullington jinks will leave the Court House corner every 7 1/2 minutes for the Park. Doors open at 7:30, fun starts at 8:30. "Tunk Edwards has been engaged to referee the main bout so that everything is expected to move smoothly tonight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (United Press.)—Two big championship bouts have practically been arranged for Thanksgiving Day.

Benny Leonard, world's light weight champion will meet Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia light weight in a fifteen round, no-decision bout at New Haven. Pete Herman, bantam champion will meet either Pal Moore or Joe Lynch at New Orleans.

The Leonard-Tendler mill has the promise of being one of the season's best battles. The Quaker light weight, despite the whipping he received from Willie Jackson has everything that brands him as a real candidate for the crown worn by Billy Gibson's champion. Tendler has been helping for a fight for months and so thoroughly convinced the fans of his sincerity that they made a demand for a chance for the Sleepy City boy that Gibson couldn't turn down.

Pete Herman wants to get back into the good graces of the fans who have been panning him of late. He has agreed to fight anyone on Turkey Day that his manager will sign up. He'll take either Pal Moore, of Jimmy White fame or Joe Lynch, the New York flash. Rather than have the two aspiring little fellows run the risk of broken limbs in the rush after the match he suggests that Moore and Lynch get together about October 20th in some ring, and decide who gets to put on the gloves for the crack at the champion-ship.

Fans who saw that go between Lynch and the champion at New Haven were almost one in declaring that the New York boy made the southerner look foolish. Herman retained his championship by running away, they claimed. If Lynch and the little Pete do get together in a bout of reasonable length the following of the Gotham scrapper will lay odds that their idol will bring home top crowd.

THIS IS THE LAST DAY TO JOIN THE "BREAD BASKET CLUB"

Make out your check tonight and mail it to THE PROGRESS. We will see that it reaches headquarters and that your name is published in the final list tomorrow.

BIRTHDAY OF WILLIAM PENN RECALLED

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 15.—Two hundred and seventy five years ago yesterday, in the city of London, occurred the birth of William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania and one of the foremost figures in the early history of America. It was in 1681 that Penn received from Charles II, the grant of the extensive territory called Pennsylvania. This grant invested him with proprietary right and dominion, the King retaining the general sovereignty. Charles II himself was responsible for the name of the territory, Penn wishing to call it "Sylvania," but the King insisted on prefixing "Penn" to the title. This was done in a desire to commemorate the greatness of Penn's father, who was admiral of England and a great general. "Pennsylvania" the territory was called, and Penn immediately created a big boom for land publishing in England and throughout Europe the liberal scheme of government which he had outlined. It was his intention, he said, to try the "holy experiment" of a "free colony for all mankind."

At the very beginning Penn made a treaty with the Indians which, as some one has said, "was never sworn to and never broken." The Indians were always the sincerest friends of Penn's people, and when William Penn died the red men mourned him as they would have deplored the death of a most distinguished member of their tribe.

The anniversary of Penn's birth has served to revive memories of the project launched some years ago looking to the transfer of the remains of the great founder from the graveyard in Buckinghamshire, England, to Philadelphia. In 1831 the Pennsylvania legislature gave its official endorsement to the plan and requested the cooperation of the President of the United States in securing its fulfillment, but nothing tangible ever came of the project.

BEAR SEASON OPENS

Pennsylvania's bear hunting season will open tomorrow and run until the fifteenth day of December. The game code allows one bear to each individual or three to a camp, and no traps or deadfalls are allowed. Bears have not been reported as very numerous in some of the northern and central counties, where they were a nuisance last year.

GLAND SWELLING IS NOT SERIOUS WILL NOT HINDER HIS RECOVERY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—No serious consequences are expected from the gland swelling which has caused President Wilson much restlessness in the last 36 hours, according to officials at the White House this morning. The ailment, it is believed, will not interfere with his general progress recovery. This belief was born out by the statement issued last night by Dr. Grayson and other physicians stating "the President had a restless night and an uncomfortable day but is better tonight." Dr. A. H. Fowler of Washington was called in in connection with the swelling late yesterday. The President is responding to Fowler's treatment.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water
in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we awoke splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of lime water phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweet-ening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before caring more food.
The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gas, waste and acidity and gives one a fine appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is enough to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism an enthusiast on internal sanitation.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost par-alyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will thank you. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; effortless to take, and makes a delightful effortless lithia-water drink.

This coal and gas range with two ovens
is a wonder for cooking

Although less than four feet long it can do every kind of cooking for any ordinary family by gas in warm weather or by coal or wood when the kitchen needs heating.

There is absolutely no danger in this combination, as the gas range section is as entirely separate from the coal section as if placed in another part of the kitchen. By using both the coal and gas sections of the top, also large utensils may be heated at one time.

See the Pastry Baking always in sight in the glass oven. The most delicate cake can be perfectly baked and watched through the glass paneled door.

A Large Roast and other baking can be done at the same time in the coal oven. The advantage is plain—Two Ovens give double capacity and allow the cook to complete the baking in one half the usual time.

Call and see this wonderful range

Hunting Eye Fears the Law

By R. S. ALEXANDER

"You'd better look out, killing rabbits out of season; the law'll get you," called a farmer to a hunter as Hunting Eye was passing.

The Indian boy was terrified. That very morning he had shot a rabbit. In the great North woods Swift Foot had taught him legends of his people, how spirits protected the animals of the forests and avenged wrongs done them. But Swift Foot had never told him of this strange new Spirit, the Law, who punished the killing of rabbits. He did not know what he might do to gain the Spirit's forgiveness. He was very much afraid and hid in a thicket that the Spirit might not find him.

Presently the hunter came near and spied the Indian boy.

"I'm hiding from the Law. I killed a rabbit this morning and I'm afraid the Spirit will punish me."

The hunter laughed.

"You needn't be afraid," he said. "The law is not a Spirit like those of your people. When people live together as we do they must have rules as to what they may or may not do. Your people have them, only they are not written down. With us they are written and each rule is called a law. All these rules together are called the Law. When we break the Law we disobey one of these rules."

"Who makes these rules?"

"The Legislature makes them. It is made up of men who are elected by the people. The laws they make are printed and everybody is supposed to obey them. That is all the Law is. You needn't be afraid of it, but I'd advise you not to disobey any of its rules."

Hunting Eye continued his journey toward the East. While he still worshiped the Spirits of his people, he no longer feared this new Spirit of the white man, the Law. He had decided to obey it and keep its favor.

Questions.

1. What are the laws made by a city called?
2. What is meant by "the two houses of the Legislature"?
3. Can the Governor or the President make a law?
4. What happens when a man breaks a law?

(Next week Hunting Eye is arrested by the sheriff.)

Autumn Wild Flowers

By ADELIA BELLE BEARD

"Off for an all-day hike?" Then you will have time to go on a real wild flower hunt. Because the flowers are not so plentiful at this season, they are just so much the more to be valued and treasured when found.

The WILD ASTERS are at their best now; white and purple little wheel-like blossoms with many spokes. Some of the plants are bushy and you will find them bordering dry fields, others are wood-lovers and seek the shade. The tall white aster grows in swamps and moist places, and keeps on growing until sometimes it is seven feet high. It has long, tapering leaves and its flower clusters are large and flat.

It is good sport to hunt the FRINGED GENTIAN, for one can never tell where to look for it. It is a gipsy flower with no settled abiding place and may turn up almost anywhere that provides sufficient moisture. It doesn't have to grow in water, but is usually somewhere near it. The gentian is a wandering plant because it grows from new seeds, not from the old root, and the seeds are easily washed away. The blossoms stand upright at the top of stems which are generally a little over one foot high. They are deeply blue, closed tube-like at the bottom, but flare out at the top into four petals fringed on the edges.

Goldenrod you will doubt find in quantities, but the beautiful JEWEL-WEED is more rare in most sections. Its blossoms as late as October and its daisy-like, yellow flowers, spotted with black, are really jewel-like, especially when covered with drops of dew or rain. The plant is branching and grows along streams and in marshy places. I have also found it by the dry roadside. Late in the season it bears closed blossoms which mature in the bud. Another name for the jewel-weed is wild lady-slipper.

OBITUARY

HARVEY T. SMITH

On Friday morning Harvey T. Smith, a life long resident of Clearfield, passed away at his residence on McNaull street, after an illness covering a period of over a year, although he had only been confined to his bed for two days prior to his demise. Harvey T. Smith was the youngest son of John J. and Nancy J. Smith, and was one of a family of fifteen children, all of whom are now dead. He was born in Pike township, on April 28th, 1843, hence was aged 76 years, 5 months and 12 days. His education was a crude one and confined to the elementary rules taught in the schools of the early day. He attended school at what was known until a few years ago as the "Oakland school house" not far from the Bloom bridge. He remained with his parents helping them with the farm work until the civil war broke out. During the first four years of the war he tried to enter the military service but was refused, but finally on March 8th 1865, he passed the required physical examination and became a member of the famous Co. B, 149th Penna. volunteer infantry, or "Bucktails" as they were known. He joined the regiment when it was stationed at Elmira, N. Y., guarding Confederate prisoners, and remained with his company until the regiment was mustered out of the service in July, 1865. After his return from the army he followed lumbering until his crippled condition from rheumatism would not permit his following that line of work any longer, and shortly afterward he moved into the borough where he has resided since. On December 5th, he was united in marriage to Miss Annie Gensler, a daughter of George and Nancy J. Gensler. To this union were born seven children: Percy E., Clarence B., Oliver F., Katherine, (who died at the age of thirteen) Eugene F., (who was accidentally killed on the Roaring Run railroad at the age of twenty-one years) Alice L., the wife of Fred McKenzie and Harvey Smith Jr.

Sixteen years Mr. Smith served this borough as street commissioner, and for fifteen years was high constable and a member of the board of health. He also served the county as jury commissioner, and made a most efficient officer in that capacity as well as all other offices that he held. He has been identified with the Republican party ever since he became a voter, and has been all of his life a very active and useful citizen. For many years he has been connected with the Odd Fellow lodge of this place, being one of the oldest Past Grand of that order. He was also connected with the encampment at Clearfield and the Red Men and G. A. R. of this place. His funeral will be held from his late home on Tuesday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock. Bethesda lodge will have entire charge of the services. Interment will be made in the family plot in Oak Hill cemetery.

Another civil war veteran has answered the last bugle call and entered upon that last march from which no traveler ever returns. Mr. Smith was also a devoted member of the Presbyterian church, and very rarely, when he was able to do so, missed a Sunday service. Harvey T. TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and youthful with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked or faded hair is grandma's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the lady with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

A Gentleman Fairy

By EDNA DEANE LYALL

Where all the children came from Rodney Marsh could not comprehend. It seemed as if magically quick some telepathic signal had been conveyed to every juvenile in the vicinity of the great city. A little group made mud pies. They wore soiled, ragged garments, were barefooted, and with pity and interest the kindly faced young man studied these poor and neglected, but happy children of the city.

Marsh drew out some small change and dropped as many coins among the four urchins who were engrossed in their mock pastry task. There was a scramble, a rapturous yell, a babel of voices from doorways and alleys. Then poured into the center children from far and near. They surrounded Marsh with grimed hands, extended and eloquent pleas for consideration.

"That is all," announced Marsh, as he detected specious repeaters in evidence and started away.

Only one of the throng ran after him, breathless and big eyed. He noticed that she was of a different breed to the general mass, being clean, poorly, but neatly dressed, and with a winning personality.

"Oh, mister, please!" uttered the little six-year-old miss. "Are you really throwing away money?"

"Why, yes, my dear, to good little children, and I am sure you must be that."

"Mamma says so, and Auntie Phyllis," came the prompt response. "Oh, how rich you must be! But I know—you're a gentleman fairy! You see, I've been saving up to buy the big doll down at the corner. Come along and I'll show you," and the little one took his hand with a trustfulness that caused him to thrill with pleasure. She halted finally beside a show window full of toys and pointed with enraptured ecstasy at the object of her admiration.

It was marked two dollars. Marsh took out a banknote.

"Oh! does it take all that money?" cried Edith Waldron. "Please, Mr. Fairy, I can do without the doll, and I'd rather you'd buy an invalid chair for poor sick mamma."

"You sweet, self-sacrificing little cherub. You shall have the doll first, and then we will see about the invalid chair," said Marsh, and his companion hugging and chatting to her towards the tenement row.

"There's where we live," little Edith enlightened Marsh, and she pointed to a third story window. There was a box filled with flowering plants. The windows were clean and bright and adorned with snowy white curtains. "My papa is dead, and we are very poor, and Auntie Phyllis is nursing poor mamma, and she can't get about, and if any of your fairies have an invalid chair, won't you please send her one?"

"Indeed, I will!" pledged Marsh, and within the hour an invalid's wheeled chair was on its way to the old tenement. It had been a relief to mingle with the lowly and make at least a few humble ones happy, but now Marsh's own troubles filled his thoughts. He had come to the city to defend a lawsuit which, if it went against him, would mean the loss of nearly all he possessed. He knew that the claim against him was unjust, but it was in the hands of legal vampires.

Marsh located the rooms on the third floor. He knocked at an open door, noting the neatness of the place. A woman, pale and careworn, seated in a new invalid chair, greeted him.

"I understand that Miss Worth does copying at home," spoke Marsh, "and I have some work for her if she is not too busy."

"My sister will return in a few minutes. Won't you be seated, please?" said the invalid.

Marsh sat down in a chair near a typewriter. Upon a table lay a number of typed sheets. He could not help but notice them. As Mrs. Waldron wheeled herself into an adjoining room Marsh picked up one and then another of the sheets, deeply absorbed.

"It is fate!" he whispered quite aroused, to himself, for by some strange coincidence Miss Worth had been copying the papers of the opposing counsel in his lawsuit. His face lightened as he became fully aware of the testimony and witnesses to be present, made some hurried notes and now knew what points to guard in the litigation.

Bright voices and footsteps sounded outside and Marsh arose to face a young girl twenty and a child of six, hearing in her loving clasp the famous doll of the corner store.

"Oh, Auntie Phyllis!" cried Edith ecstatically, rushing towards Marsh and throwing her arms about his neck. "It's the gentleman fairy!"

HYMN OF HATE SEEN IN ANTI-FRENCH EDITORIAL

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
BERLIN. (By Mail.)—Something akin to a "hymn of hate" is rising up in Germany against France.

So far it hasn't found emphatic expression in the press. But, every move on the part of the entente which displeases Germany is generally attributed to the influence of Clemenceau and Tardieu. And, there is an undercurrent of talk which suggests that some day—not in this generation probably, but later—there will be new trouble in which Germany and France will again fly at each other's throats.

Theodor Wolff, editor of the Tageblatt, a man of some judgment, and mild language, took occasion in a recent issue of his paper to give France a lecture on neighborliness. While he didn't exactly sing a hymn of hate, he did point out quite significantly that, even though France had been since against, she might stupidly stir up new trouble for herself if she did not take a new tack.

The occasion for most of his remarks was the alleged quotation of the French socialist, Albert Thomas, who recommended the "peaceful penetration of the left Rhine bank," as well as the recent allied demand for alteration of the German constitution as respects Austrian representation in the Reichsrat.

Most of his remarks were directed squarely at France.

"Previously, France and the other entente powers," he wrote, "through all their measures, conditions and decisions have, like the German Independents, strengthened nationalism and the counter revolutionary and militarist reaction in Germany."

The French deputies, he complained, had gone on the theory that the treaty was too mild and that it did not offer sufficient security for France.

"We have always said," Wolff continued, "that a great folk cannot always be laid in chains. Since one cannot exterminate such a people (the Germans) nor drown them in the sea, it is always the part of wisdom to prepare for their living as neighbors and together.

"But Clemenceau and Tardieu, as well as most of the deputies, will not go this path. The single idea of these parliamentary critics of the treaty is that the entente has done wrongly in allowing Germany to exist."

Wolff insisted, too, that there was more "Prussianism" and more of a "yoke" about the authorities in Paris than in all Prussia. His article was written on a vacation in the mountains, and from nature he drew a simile which, translated between the lines, meant that France would do well to proceed carefully, lest she stir up a nation and weld it anew against her. What he claimed were French-inspired attempts to separate some of the Rhineland regions from France, he pointed out, were having an adverse effect.

"Here in the mountains," he concluded, "one sees the little rivulets which despite all hindrances force their way through and reach the free valley below, because for powers which constantly renew themselves there is always an exit. That is a spectacle which is not surprising but rather comforting and instructive."

And, from quite another source—the conservative Deutsche Tageszeitung, an organ of the "right" side—comes the thought that Germany some day wants to use her army as "influence on the outer policy" of the nation. While the writer carefully avoided all appearance of trying to suggest doing the peace treaty terms—and in fact wrote to the contrary—his editorial gives the impression that silence as to the army is necessary lest the entente watch too closely what is going on. The writer says that many people want to see the army so built up that virtually all of its personnel can serve later as officers or instructors. But such publication, he says, only hinders the building of the new army because it makes the entente more attentive as to what is going on.

CAN THE YOUNG APPRECIATE AUTUMN?

By L. J. Laporte

The falling and rustling of the leaves reminds us that a few words in regard to autumn would not be amiss right here and now. Listen, kind friends: Can the young love autumn as it is loved by so many of those who, if they are not exactly either old or even middle-aged, are no longer young? Can those who are still young, almost exclusively for the present and future, with no sense of the past, sense the feeling of those who yearly love the golden autumn more, with less yearning for the verdure and freshness of spring, and less vigorous delight in the icy sparkle of the winter? In autumn we feel the God of the yellow hills bending a bit nearer above us. There is a peace stealing over the world, these gentle autumn days; a peace as unvarying and as serene as those straight rising slender columns of blue, that lazily drift from the chimneys of the dozing countryside. At the end of the summer the little treasuries have lost their spring-fed tumult and their passion. They slip away in slender shrinking lines of orange and silver, scarcely enough of movement, or of flood with them to float the brilliant leafy ships that come tumbling down from maple and from beech. Autumn is time of ripeness, yellow fields, dry rustling rows of fodder, floating hawks and crows, almost motionless in the serenity above; it is a time for introduction, of counting up the year's harvest of communing with your soul, of getting acquainted with the good warm earth, slowly sinking into her night of sleep. A golden autumn afternoon and you alone out in the quiet, where even the migratory birds are silent, and the bushy tailed red fellow in the nut trees quite at ease scolding, and stands still and erect, his pouched cheeks stuffed with a load for his pantry—there are associated with such a picture emotions unknown to the mind that does not turn often in wistful yearning to things past and gone.

HOLDING BACK THE NEWS

For almost three weeks the people of the United States have known that the Chief Executive has been incapacitated, temporarily at least. During all of this time his household, his intimates and his closest friends and advisors have seen fit to withhold from the general public the real nature of his illness and these tactics have given rise to rumors of "fifty seven" varieties. Owing to the bitter controversy around the official life of the President and his acts it is only natural that the greatest obstacle is given the most sensational rumors. The absence of reliable detail has only served to breed all kinds of stories, many of which are without foundation and utterly ridiculous. For this state of affairs his friends and official household are themselves to blame. What their motive is in trying to conceal the facts from the public is not apparent. No matter what is his trouble, a plain statement of the facts would have saved Mr. Wilson from the attacks being made upon him. The human body is always open to the attacks of disease in its thousands of forms and while man in many cases is to blame for the disease which attacks him the bare fact remains that it is disease of some form or other that eventually removes a life from its earthly sphere. The idea that mental troubles are a disgrace and that there is difference between mental disease and bodily disease is altogether too prevalent. Both the brain and the body are made up of the same tissue although that of the brain is much more delicate and is just as likely to be overworked as any organ of the body.

It is not for the laymen to go into the intricacies of mental troubles. That belongs to the scientific man. Suffice it to say that Mr. Wilson is ill and that regardless of our views on his official acts we wish him a speedy recovery. Should he recover and live to hear all the base current rumors he can blame his official household for not telling the people the whole truth.

The futility of holding back the news is known to every man engaged in the newspaper business. It simply cannot be done. Dame Rumor has too many friends. People are considered the truth but reckless with rumor.

SECOND CHAPTER OF WINBURNE BRICK COMPANY WRITTEN

The stockholders of the Winburne Fire Brick company went into court Monday with a bill in equity in which they recite the alleged wrongs against them suspected of Thomas H. Wilson the Pittsburgh promoter, responsible for the formation of the corporation. In the court action a preliminary injunction was asked for and granted restraining Wilson from 1st Disposing of any of the personal property or assets of the Winburne Fire Brick company in his possession, custody or control, including money, Liberty Bonds, and all other items of personal property belonging to said corporation.

2nd Issuing, negotiating or filling in for the purpose of issue or negotiation any checks of said corporation in his possession signed in blank by the treasurer.

3d Selling, negotiating, assigning or transferring to any other person or persons any shares of the capital stock either preferred or common, now standing in the name of said defendant, on the books of the Winburne Fire Brick company, or any of the shares of the capital stock, either preferred or common as yet unissued by the said corporation.

The preliminary injunction was granted by Judge Bell yesterday and the papers placed in the hands of Sheriff Gorman this morning for immediate service.

According to the bill in equity filed the Winburne Fire Brick company was organized at a meeting in Pittsburgh December 19, 1918. The capital stock of the corporation was placed at $1,000,000, or 10,000 shares at a par value of $100 each. At this meeting Thomas H. Wilson was elected President; H. Morris, Secretary, and Thomas Allebran, of Painsutawney, Treasurer.

The property of the company consisted of certain leases for the Snyder estate coal and clay lands in Cooper township made in name of Thomas H. Wilson.

At this meeting $100,000 of preferred stock was issued to Thomas H. Wilson on condition that he transfer

The Essex Is With Us

We Will Sell This New Light Weight Quality Car. Our Full Endorsement is Added to All That Everyone Says for it

Come and Ride In It

When the Essex made its first appearance we in common with other dealers were a bit skeptical.

Curiosity led us to take a ride in the Essex. That was enough. The way the Essex rode over rough roads and pavements was amazing to us with our accustomed idea of light car riding qualities.

But when the Essex started to climb hills our admiration was finally and completely won. It was not necessary to show us how quickly the Essex accelerated or how easily it answered every touch of the wheel. It was not necessary for the demonstrator to say a word. The Essex had us at its feet.

The beauty of the Essex design and the trimness of its lines only added to our enthusiasm. In every respect the Essex was the equal of cars many times its cost.

So we decided to get the Essex representation if it were possible. It was not an easy task. The quick popularity of the Essex led other dealers to also want to sell the Essex. The Essex people chose only those dealers who meet the highest standards. We had to show our qualifications. At last we received word that we were to have the Essex for this territory.

An Essex is now at our store. We have a demonstrating car. Come, see, and ride in it. You will be just as enthusiastic about this new type fine car as we were. It combines every advantage of light car economy and flexibility with large car comfort and endurance. Be sure and ride in it.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

Mr. Mike Casey, a resident of town, died at his home on Tuesday, after an illness extending over a year. He received a injury while working in the hard day mines operated by Mr. Wagner, of far from his home, from which he never regained his health. His age was 44 years. He is survived by a widow and three children.

Mr. A. H. Anderson sold on Tuesday a house and lot, situate on a town street, South Side, to Walter and wife. Consideration $12,500.

Captain George H. Hallack was a Curwensville visitor yesterday. Seven years ago he was an apprentice in Summit Sole Leather tannery, but tiring of his job he went to his home in Wilcox. Since his residence here he has done considerable traveling, visiting Alaska and all of the northwestern states. Two years and a half ago he enlisted in the army and saw active service in half a dozen or more of the foreign countries in the war zone. He left on the evening train for the east, where he expects to be mustered out of the service within the next few days.

Ex-Sheriff Ira McClosky, of Clearfield, was a town visitor for several hours yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Karl Dotts and bride arrived home on Sunday. Mrs. Dotts will resume her position in the post office until the first of the year, after which the young couple expect to go to housekeeping.

Two blind men, with a street melodeon, entertained the people in front of the Opera House block last evening by singing some fine selections.

Mrs. George Fleming, residing on Bloomington avenue, who has been seriously ill for many weeks, is now able to sit up in a chair a few hours each day, which is very encouraging news for her many friends on this side of the river.

The funeral of the late Harvey T. Smith yesterday afternoon, was attended by over fifty Odd Fellows. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the Odd Fellows used the house service instead of the one used at the graveside. The floral tributes, while not elaborate, were very beautiful and appropriate for the occasion.

Mrs. E. L. Coolbroth, who for the past six weeks has been visiting with relatives and friends at Johnstown and other eastern towns, returned to her home in this place last evening.

Mr. D. R. Fleming, who went to Illinois last week to attend a funeral of a relative, returned home Tuesday evening.

At a regular meeting of Bethesda Lodge No. 21 I. O. O. F., held Saturday evening in their hall the following resolutions were adopted:

"So let him sleep that dreamless sleep. Our sorrows clustering 'round his head; Be comforted, ye loved who weep. He lives with God—he is not dead."

In memory of Brother Harvey T. Smith, who died October 9th, 1919. Once again death has summoned a Brother Odd Fellow, and the golden gateway to the Eternal City has opened to welcome him to his home. He has completed his work in the ministering to the wants of the ar-dicted in shedding light into darkened souls and in bringing joy into the places of misery and as his reward has received the plaudito "well done," from the Supreme Master.

And whereas, the all-wise and merciful Master of the Universe has called our beloved and respected brother home, and he having been a true and faithful member of our beloved Order, therefore be it

Resolved: That Bethesda Lodge No. 21, I. O. O. F., of Curwensville, Pa., in testimony of its loss, be draped in mourning for thirty days, and we tender to the family our sincere condolence in this deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

The leases referred to above to the Winburne Fire Brick company. In addition to this $50,000 worth of common stock was also issued to Wilson to be used as a bonus for the purpose of helping the sale of the preferred stock in the concern. The allegation upon which the whole action is brought is that despite the fact that this stock was issued to Wilson and has since been in his possession he has so far failed to make the agreed upon transfer of the leases in question. In addition thereto he has also sold a great many shares of stock in the company, the exact amount and value of which and return therefor is unknown to the stockholders and not in possession of their duly accredited officers.

The preliminary injunction terminates October 25th, unless extended at that time.

MARRIED THIS MORNING

Ray Hudson Brown, of Curwensville, and Eleanor May Thurston, of Clearfield, surprised their host of friends by slipping quietly over to the West Side Methodist parsonage and having Rev. C. C. Snively say the words which made them man and wife. The ceremony was performed at 7:40 o'clock in the presence of the immediate families of the contracting parties.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George I. Thurston, and a charming and accomplished young woman. The groom has been employed at the local Workman's Store for some time and has made a host of friends during his residence here.

The happy couple left on the 8:20 P. M. R. train for a wedding trip to Philadelphia and other eastern cities.

Do not for the sake of a few dollars deny yourself the benefits to be derived from having a Dutch Litchenet in your home. It is really a beautiful piece of furniture, and is more useful and convenient than it is attractive. You need not wear yourself out drudging in a poorly equipped kitchen any longer. Come in and let us show you this wonderful time and labor saver.

Voss Electric Washers—Add to Home Comforts, Shortens the Working Hours

A popular model. This short bench platform machine is one of the most popular models that we handle. The platform is made large enough for an extra tub and the extension tray, which slides under the bench when not in use, provides still another. The machine is equipped with an extra clothes tray, castors of double roller type, a motor of ample capacity, together with the famous double controlled Voss wringer mechanism. Metal tubs on his machine are extra. $100.00 Cash, $110.00 Payments

Remember there is an electric washer designed to take advantage of the conditions peculiar to your home. It was generally conceded that one type was as suitable as another, but this is far from true. To get the utmost in an efficient, economical Electric Washer there are many things you should know before buying. First of all figure out where you will use the machine, and how much space you have. Have you hot and cold water facilities, and are they conveniently located? Have you stationary tubs? Is there a floor drain? All these questions and many others are answered in our new book "Practical Information for the Washing Machine Buyer." Ask us to send you a copy. It is free.

Tired Out?

Do you know that languidness, that "swill tired feeling," heaviness, lame or weak back, sore muscles, stiff or swollen joints, rheumatic pains, lumbago, is the great majority of cases, indicate kidney trouble?

Foley Kidney Pills

act promptly and effectively to restore weak, overworked or diseased kidneys and bladder to a healthy condition.

Mrs. Robert Blair, 611 S. 2nd Street, Terre Haute, Ind., writes: "I suffered two years with kidney and bladder trouble frequently getting backache. Morning I would arise feeling very tired and having headaches, and see foot-very little and made up my mind to try them. After taking them a few weeks I found my kidneys were restored to healthy, normal action. I am also free of those tired spells and headaches and my vision is no longer blurred. I am naturally due to Foley Kidney Pills which I gladly recommend."

DELIGHTFUL MUSICAL PROGRAM

The Officiaclamoose Trio, composed of three of Clearfield High School's most talented musicians, gave a delightful concert during chapel exercises this morning. An idea of the class of this trio may be gained by a perusal of the program so charmingly rendered.

The first number was the overture "Orpheus," from the opera by Offenbach. The second selection was the "Herd Girl's Dream" by August Labitzky. No. 3 was the fox trot "You Can Have It, I Don't Want It," and the concert concluded with the "Toreador's Song" from the opera "Carmen."

The members of the trio are William Hoover, violin; H. P. Bridge, Jr., saxophone and F. P. Wentzel, piano.

NOTICE

The members of the Ladies' Aid of the West Side M. E. church are requested to be present on Thursday, as there is special business.

THAT DULL ACHING

Don't worry and complain about a bad back. Get rid of it! For weak kidneys, lame and aching backs, your neighbors recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this statement:

Miss Jane Graham, 125 Fulton street, Clearfield, says: "I suffered from kidney complaint some time ago. There was a dull ache in the small of my back, and I had severe headaches. I also had a tired feeling in my loins. On using one box of Doan's Kidney Pills, the backaches and headaches left and I didn't have that tired feeling any more. I think Doan's Kidney Pills are a wonderful kidney remedy and I am glad to recommend them."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Graham had. Foster-McMillan Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

We have a superior idea of what GOOD VALUES MEAN

Thank You

For the great business you are giving us these days—you can be certain there will be no let-down of value giving.

It is summed up in a very few words—"quality for quality our prices are lower than elsewhere"—and when we say "quality" please bear in mind the fact that we always offer the best—no reduction in quality for a reduction in price—and so certain are we that our values are unequalled that we make this challenge—"if at any time you find an article of equal merit offered elsewhere at a lower price than we have the same article in stock—even if the prices have been deliberately lowered below ours—we will sell you the same article at a still lower price—for we positively will not be undersold by anyone—and that is our idea of values—get acquainted with them.

Service

With a capital S in our watchword—do not hesitate to tell us if you have a complaint.
